A Brief History

1972 - Overbrook Child Development and Family Learning Center - This center has a long history of successfully serving preschool children from throughout the county and was designated as Palmetto's Finest in 1995.

1996 - Golden Strip Family and Child Development Center - Answering the need of the community, an early childhood program began at the Golden Strip Community Resource Center, in the old Bryson Elementary School. Golden Strip Family and Child Development Center moved to a new facility which was completed in the fall of 2005 on the adjacent property. The Golden Strip Child Development Center still works closely with the newly named Center for Community Services.

1998 - Northwest Child Development and Family Services Center - Furman University invited the School District, Greenville Hospital Center and United Way's "Success By 6" to jointly apply for a Duke Endowment grant to serve young children and families in the Northwest Crescent area surrounding the Berea community and Furman's campus. The center began in the former Berea Elementary building and moved a year later into a larger facility at the former Arrington Elementary site. A new facility was completed in the fall of 2005 and named Northwest Crescent Child Development and Family Learning Center.

1999 - Dunbar Child Development and Family Learning Center - With resources supplemented by the employee charity of a local business partner, Dunbar Child Development/Family Learning Center opened in the former East Greer Elementary School. A new facility was completed in the fall of 2005.

2000 Riley Child Development and Family Learning Center - With the receipt of the state's first Level II First Steps Grant, a fifth early childhood center was established in the southern part of the county. The Riley Child Development Center moved into the newly constructed center in 2004. The center continues to grow with the addition of the educational community garden in 2008.

2009 Greenview Child Development Center - The sixth child development center opened in 2009 with the support of the Greenville County School District. The totally renovated Greenview Elementary school serves as the home of Greenview Child Development Center. Greenview CDC includes 4k and preschool special education programs. It is also the site for initial eligibility evaluations for preschool special education.
