The History of the Evening Division at Furman University:

Undergraduate Evening Studies was established in September 1957 to meet the needs of those who wish to work toward an undergraduate degree and/or take courses which would be of value in professional or occupational advancement. Since then, Undergraduate Evening Studies (UES) has grown and evolved into a program serving nontraditional students who balance the challenges of work, family, and academics. Our goal is to provide our students with the highest quality instruction and student services possible. A challenging curriculum, led by experienced faculty, as well as experts in a variety of fields, provide students with foundational knowledge, the ability to think critically, communicate more effectively, and solve complex problems efficiently. Practical instruction, convenient class times, tailored advising and student services, a comprehensive curriculum and an abbreviated tuition structure are just a few ways we seek to serve our students.
