

Hello, I'm Davey Morgan

My writing journey, interwoven with musical undertones from playing the guitar and mandolin, began in 2005. This musical background subtly infused my early ventures into songwriting and devotional writing, enhancing the lyrical quality of my work. I completed my B.A. in Visual Art from Erskine College in 2007, further enriching my creative canvas. The self-publication of "Calvin the Monkey" in 2008 marked my initial foray into children's literature, reflecting my unique storytelling style.

In 2018, I took writing classes to further hone my skills and craft, a step that significantly contributed to my development as a writer. The year 2020 introduced a pivotal shift in my writing, leading to a period of intense creativity and renewed focus. This culminated in the publication of "Cayo and Patch: The Piso Crystal" in 2021, my inaugural children's comic book. This project not only represented my entry into the comic book genre but also showcased my evolving narrative abilities and artistic versatility.

My portfolio has since grown to encompass a diverse range of children's books, each narrated with a distinct voice and brought to life through my illustrations. The integration of my artistic skills not only adds a deeply personal and visually engaging dimension to my stories but also enables me to weave together art and writing, ensuring that my story ideas are fully expressed through both captivating illustrations and a compelling narrative. My recent foray into short story writing, with the compilation of an anthology, adds another facet to my diverse body of work.

My writing style, blending imaginative storytelling with visual artistry and musical influences, continues to evolve, offering readers a rich and varied tapestry of stories. My books are available to readers through Amazon and in local bookstores.
